

NATHAN ROUNDS, BROKE AT 52, DIES WORTH $500,000

Officer of Ely & Walker Co.
Who Succumbs at 65,
Was Master Salesman,
His Associates Say.

CANNY ADVISER TO HIS CUSTOMERS

After His Retirement From Road, Merchants Came to Him in the Buying Season.

Nathan Rounds, treasurer and director of the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., who died here yesterday, was acclaimed the best dry goods salesman in the St. Louis trade territory, if not the best salesman. And he stretched the St. Louis trade territory to the Pacific Coast. He directed sales for his company in the West and Northwest.

The qualities which gave him the nomination as best salesman were accountable, too, for the fact that, although he was "broke" at 52, he died in his sixty-fifth year possessed of $500,000 or more.

His associates today were discussing how completely he embodied the powers of a master salesman. To them the proof was that though Rounds—Nat Rounds as he was widely known—abandoned the role of traveling salesman years ago, he still made sales calls and earned $5,000 a year. When he ceased to go to his customers, his customers came to him—many at great distances. It is said that Rounds, in the buying season, had as many as 50 customers "in the store" in one day. He managed to take care of all of them somehow with a deft personal touch that made each feel that he was the favored.

Canny Business Adviser.

The reason they came to Rounds was that to most of them he was more than salesman. He was a canny business adviser. Not a few had helped finance in the beginning days. He was regarded as a shrewd judge of men, even to the extent that he was able to persuade away many doubts of the firm's credit head. "I tell you that man is good," he would argue. "How do you know?" "I just know," he would reply, and frequently would offer to go 50-50 with the firm in taking the chance. "He seldom was wrong," the credit manager said today.

Buyers came to know that Rounds knew prices and values in the firm's large diversified stock better than any other man in the house. Consequently, they bought this number or that number upon his recommendation that it would sell in Pocatello or Los Angeles. He was that rare type of salesman who knew his wares, down to their infinitesimals—materials, the methods of manufacture, comparative qualities.

He had all the affabilities of a successful salesman. He had personal charm. He was large of feet 2 inches, weighing 220 pounds, slow to his checks, a smile. He won all who had contact with him. "If he took a train to the Pacific Coast, he would know half the people on the train before it had passed Missouri," an associate said. "And he could get off at almost any station en route and find someone he knew."

Memory Was Remarkable.

His memory was remarkable, whether natural or cultivated. He used it to recall that this was the wedding anniversary of a good customer in Phoenix or that the 5-year-old son of an account in Seattle was about to have another birthday.

His appeal was not to one class upon the basis of similar tastes. He made friends of all men. He was known as a half-fellow who never could bring himself to a vote for prohibition, yet one of his closest, if not his closest friends was a man who never had tasted liquor, who scorned it, who even frowned upon smoking as unworthy of man, whose chief interest outside business was his church.

Underlying all these factors of selling success was Rounds' indefatigable attention to business. It fatigued him, however, gave up the possibility of bringing a good account to his firm. Sometimes it required months, maybe longer. It required "pulling strings" and often his associates felt that he was wasting energy. But he usually brought in the account.

Many Telegrams Received.

Today telegrams were piling up in sheaves on the desks of officers, heads of departments, the desk where he himself sat. They were all from customers scattered throughout the West. One from Astoria, Ore., said: "The whole Northwest mourns for Nat Rounds. He was the soundest, most reliable business man ever had."

Rounds' collapse was one attributed to uncontrollable events and he quickly recovered from brief lapses. A group of retail stores in which he had interested himself, failed in the depression that preceded the World War and he was reduced in fortune.

As has been told, he had recuperated since to the extent of $500,000 or more. His only immediate who when put on the stand by the Walsh Committee, did not know whether the Elk Hills reserve was in California or Wyoming, and actually was under the impression that Teapot Dome had been leased to Doheny. It would have cheered him greatly today to hear the story of that domineering secretary of the Navy before whom Fall touched his forelock respectfully and said, "yes, sir," when told what to do.

Fall - Doheny Defense Opens; Government Rests

Character Witnesses Called. The first two defense witnesses were character witnesses for Doheny. Carl Leonard and his son, Frank H. Powell, who are next-door neighbors of the oil man in Los Angeles.

"What is the reputation of Mr. Doheny in Los Angeles for honesty, integrity and patriotism?" asked Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel.

"I don't think his patriotism is an issue in this case," cut in Justice Hooehling.

Private Deal Unprecedented. The testimony showed that all fuel depots heretofore constructed had been paid for out of funds appropriated by Congress. It showed that the House and Senate Military and Naval Committees are always apprised of the navy's secret war plan, hence that Congress was acting advisedly when it refused to appropriate money for the Pearl Harbor tanks, and that any claim that extraordinary measures were required to meet an emergency are poppycock.

When former Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty testified Tuesday that he had been asked for an opinion on the legality of the contracts, the defense brought out the fact that each department had its own legal department, headed by a solicitor. Yesterday the prosecution called to the stand Edwin Booth, who was solicitor for the Interior Department when these contracts were let.

"Were you ever asked for an opinion on the legality of these contracts?" Booth was asked. "I was not," he replied.

"Were you told anything about the leasing of the reserve?" "No, sir."

The defense contends that the Navy Department was as much responsible for the first contract as for the first defense.

Star Witness Taken Stand. Bain, who is expected to be the star witness for the defense, then took the stand. Bain, a wizened little man, with a schoolmasterly demeanor, has consistently defended the leases in the making of which he appeared to have a considerable role. He defended them before the Walsh committee before and after the revelations that Fall had received money and large bonds from Doheny and Smith.

Later he left the Government service and is now in private practice in New York as a mining engineer, in which, of course, his principal clients are the large oil and mining corporations.

Government Shoveled the Evidence Into Record Yesterday. The Government's case reached its highest moment yesterday afternoon. In the closing hours the special prosecutors fairly shoveling evidence into the record. A steady procession of witnesses passed to and from the chair, and the pile of contracts, letters and telegrams mounted like Jack's ladder. The prosecution seemed determined to overwhelm the defense with the very volume of evidence. And much of it was clean-cut and apparently deadly.

If the import of it reached the jury, the defense is confronted by the task of hewing down a mountain before it can reach the clear. There were, it will be recalled, two outstanding contracts with Doheny. The first, signed April 25, 1922, gave him the right to drill oil wells in a limited area outside the boundary of the reserve, and to accept the Government's royalty oil which came from the wells as payment for storage tanks which he would build at Pearl Harbor, and fill with fuel oil for the ships of the Pacific fleet.

Scheme to Circumvent Congress. Congress had refused to appropriate money for building these tanks, and this was the plan which Fall, Doheny and Admiral J. K. Robinson of the navy cooked up to circumvent Congress.

The defense claims that Doheny was actuated largely by patriotic motives, having knowledge of an impending Japanese attack. It does not, of course, explain the fact that it would take years to build and fill the tanks, and that if the Japanese fleet did attack us, Pearl Harbor would be one of the very first to be hit.

Under this tankage contract, Doheny got a "preferential right" to any leases which Fall might subsequently grant to drill the main body of the reserve on the ground that he would make no profit out of the first contract. Under cover of that clause, Fall secretly leased the whole reserve to Doheny the following Dec. 22.

The evidence, oral and documentary, showed that during the very day Fall and Doheny agreed to lease the entire reserve, estimated to contain 250,000,000 barrels of oil, to his old pal, Doheny, he was answering the inquiries of other oil companies by telling them that the reserve was not to be leased.

Doheny Made $971,000. It was shown that the first contract, out of which Doheny declared he would make no profit, actually yielded him a profit of $971,000.

This resulted from the fact that when Fall made the deal to exchange a certain quantity of Government oil for the tank construction there was a vast overproduction, and oil was correspondingly cheap. Later, when the price recovered, Doheny contracted to sell the oil which he was receiving from the Government at a profit of 15 cents a barrel.

It was during this period of overproduction that Fall persuaded the companies whose fields adjoined the reserve to stop pumping in those fields. While they still leased the reserve to Doheny, largely upon the excuse that the reserve was in danger of being drained, naming, as the source of the drainage, the very well which he had caused to be shut down.

The Government contends first, that it was against public policy to lease the reserve at all, it having been created to provide a safe emergency supply of fuel in the ground against future wars. It contends, in the second place, that if the reserve was to be leased, it should have been thrown open to competitive bidding. It contends, finally, that Doheny received favored treatment from Fall because he had given Fall a bribe of $100,000 in the guise of a loan.

It showed that the House and Senate Military and Naval Committees are always apprised of the navy's secret war plan, hence that Congress was acting advisedly when it refused to appropriate money for the Pearl Harbor tanks, and that any claim that extraordinary measures were required to meet an emergency are poppycock.

Fall Sure of Harding. Fall's feeling of confidence where President Harding was concerned, had been made even more manifest in earlier evidence.

Following the secret leasing of the Teapot Dome reserve, in Wyoming, to Harry F. Sinclair, on April 7, 1922, and the signing of the tankage contract with Doheny, on April 25, the late Senator Follette got wind of what was going on, and introduced a resolution which Fall had prepared for the Senate to sign. He has said he knew very little about what he was doing.

He testified that nobody had ever discussed the leases with him until after they were made, and that he did not know the reserve was to be leased outright, until after it had been signed away.

On cross-examination, defense counsel asked if Pearl Harbor had not become a point of great strategic importance for the Navy. Roosevelt replied that it always had been.

Government counsel interrupted to ask if it was not a fact that Doheny had not become a point of great strategic importance for the Navy. Roosevelt said it invariably did so.

"All plans—what the Navy hopes for and frequently doesn't get," he added.

By two Admirals, Halligan and Rousseau, it was shown that fuel storage depots are a recognized part of the naval operating system, that many of them exist and that all were built from funds appropriated by Congress.

There came a succession of Western oil men who identified letters and telegram which they had sent Fall in 1922, inquiring if the Government had any intention of leasing the Elk Hills reserve, and asking, in that event, for opportunities to bid on the contracts.

Fall's Refusals Produced.

They produced replies in which Fall invariably replied that it was against Government policy to lease the reserve. In one reply he pointed out the existing overproduction as an additional reason for not opening the reserve for drilling.

Some of these replies were not more than two months earlier than the date on which he secretly signed the contract leasing the whole reserve to Doheny. At that time one witness said, the overproduction was 1,000,000 barrels a month.

There was one inquiry from the Chicago Bridge & Iron Co., wanting to know about the tankage contracts, with a view to bidding on the construction. Fall hotly rejected this.

They Once Hobbled Women Like Horses

“BUT how very immodest, my dear”, said the lady of the late eighties, as she surveyed the half inch of ankle that displayed itself between shoestraps and skirt hem of the new gown. And she was right. It was decidedly immodest to show the ankles of that day. They didn’t add a single iota to the beauty of the general dress ensemble. There was good reason for calling legs limbs. They were a good deal more like limbs than legs.

That your ankles may appear at their best, insist upon “Onyx Pointex”.

Leading stores everywhere sell “Onyx” Hosiery and especially the “Pointex” styles listed below.

TO CONTINUE CAMPAIGN FOR COMMUNITY FUND

Captains of Drive Vote Unanimously to Renew Efforts for $145,000 Needed.

Continuation until Dec. 15 of the Community Fund campaign, still about $145,000 short of the $1,500,000 goal announced as the minimum necessary for next year’s activities of the 50 member charities, was voted unanimously at a luncheon of more than 100 captains of the campaign yesterday at Hotel Statler.

“We believe this money can be raised and are going to stick to the job until it is raised,” said Walter H. Weisenburger, general chairman, in explaining the plan. “The charities and philanthropies which make up the Community Fund must have the use or curtail their activities. Not until every possible giver has been seen and every dollar given will the campaign be over.”

Pledges now in the hands of workers, but not yet reported will raise the total already subscribed to $1,702,000. It was announced. That is some $28,000 more than last year’s total, and is the greatest sum ever pledged for charity in St. Louis, but is regarded insufficient for increasing demands on the organizations, according to the chairman.

Weisenburger’s plan, which was adopted last night, is to reach the goal before the annual meeting of the Community Fund late in January. Activities are to cease between Dec. 15 and New Year, for checking up on reported subscriptions, and then continue for a few days to clear up prospective givers on whom reports have not been made.

PROSECUTION IN HALL
CASE SPECTACULAR; DEFENSE STAID, SOLID

With his fury and scorched them with his invective.

Never in a courtroom have I heard a more bitter tongue-lashing given to a man than that administered to Edward Schwartz (of the Jersey City police), whom he accused outright of having manufactured a spurious finger print of Willie Stevens on the card found near Hall’s body, and not only of having peddled it out to a sensational newspaper, but after he had sold it, of coming to the defense and saying that he would like to be retained by it, and could give information that would negative the prosecution.

Witness Set Against Witness
McCartier began his speech by saying, as he pointed to the defendants, “these people are not thieves. They are not thugs. They are not brutes. They have no criminal record. On the contrary, they and their forebears have lived in this community for generations. They have been law-abiding, honest, honorable, cultivated, educated, God-fearing people. How absurd for anybody to think that they would commit this awful, atrocious, terrible murder.”

The lawyer for Prosecutor Simpson was silent at the beginning of the trial, that he expected to prove Mrs. Hall knew of her husband’s affair with Mrs. Mills, that she had Minna Clark to spy upon them, and that she had in her possession the love letters that her husband and his sweetheart had written each other. He showed how the defense had disproved each of these contentions. In masterly fashion he put witness against witness. Mrs. Demarest’s daughter against her mother, for the daughter had been out with the mother at the time she was seen. Mrs. Minna Clark and Gladine spying on Hall and Mrs. Mills, the daughter did not see them. Their prominent clergymen of the Episcopal Church, and a number of Mrs. Hall’s friends against the horse driver who said he saw scratches on Mrs. Hall’s face at the funeral, and so on and on, through the long list of witnesses.

And he utterly discredited the authenticity of the card that it is alleged has “Willie” Stevens’ finger print upon it, and which was handled about New York and New Jersey for four years before it ever came into a court of law.

A gorgeous record of these two well-known arias, $2.

$9113 EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE TO BE FILED

Indictment of John Kalafatich of Croatian Relief Society Promised Tomorrow.

An indictment charging the embezzlement of $9113 against John Kalafatich, former treasurer of the Croatian Sloga Benefit Society, a co-operative sick benefit association, will be returned tomorrow when the October grand jury makes its final report to Circuit Judge Landwehr, it was learned today.

Kalafatich appeared in court Nov. 20 and furnished $5000 bond under the indictment, which was voted a few days previous, after other officers of the society and auditors appeared before the grand jury. He lives at 2700A Accomac street.

Kalafatich was treasurer of the organization, while he meets in a hall at Eleventh street and Chouteau avenue, from 1918 until Oct. 13, 1925, when he resigned after other officers questioned his accounts.

The grand jury was told his books were accurately kept, and that the shortage developed in the cash in bank. The books showed $15,100.22 cash in bank, but investigation showed only $12,596.78 on deposit.

The indictment charges embezzlement of the difference.

Kalafatich could not be reached.

PLANS A TWO-DAY SERVICE FOR COAST-TO-COAST AIR MAIL

Postmaster-General Says Only Lighting of Route West of Salt Lake City Needed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Linking the Atlantic and the Pacific with the loss of only one business day is the goal toward which the air mail service is working.

Postmaster-General New said today this would be accomplished as soon as Congress provides funds for lighting the last leg of the transcontinental airway from Salt Lake City westward. The schedule then will call for departure of planes from New York and San Francisco at the close of the business day and the arrival of mail on the opposite side of the continent on the second morning in time for first deliveries.

Receipts of the transcontinental route at the present rate should be double for 1927 what they were in 1925. Performance of the service was 94 per cent perfect during the last year with a flying mileage of 2,236,137, of which almost a million miles were covered at night.

The placing of transportation of air mail with private contractors is felt by the Postmaster-General to be the greatest forward step in commercial aviation in America since the inauguration of regular night flying. The transcontinental and New York-Chicago overnight services, the only Government-operated lines, will be placed in private hands early next year.

SEEK MAN WHO DISAPPEARED ON WAY TO DISAPPEARED

Charles W. Potts, 26 years old, of 462 Laurel avenue, is being sought by police at request of relatives, following his disappearance between St. Louis and Sparta, Ill., while ostensibly on a trip to visit his fiancee, to whom he was to be married shortly after Christmas. He failed to arrive at Sparta, relatives have been advised, and he has not been heard from since.

Potts left his mother and sister Saturday evening outside the theater on Washington avenue downtown, after taking them to the show. He was to have gone to the Washington avenue station to take the train for Sparta. Failure to hear from him since has caused relatives to believe he has met with harm. Potts was employed at the brokerage house of Mark E. Steinberg.

COMBINE TO WITHHOLD PROFITS, IS CHARGED

Seebert Jones Testifies in Suit Against Bankrupt Bringhurst Concern.

Seebert Jones, former Circuit Attorney of St. Louis, declared in sworn testimony before Referee in Bankruptcy Coles yesterday that he stands to lose $500 in connection with the bankruptcy of the Bringhurst Corp., an advertising poster concern, because Walter S. Bringhurst, artist president of the company, John B. Hinckley, secretary and treasurer, and A. E. Neidt, a salesman, had a secret partnership "formed for the purpose of taking the profit out of the company."

Jones testified for Trustee Orville Livingston in connection with a reclamation petition brought in behalf of the Bringhurst Garment Display Co. for the recovery of some $2500 of poster mannequins which form a part of the $2500 assets of the Bringhurst Corp. He was preceded on the stand by Neidt, who testified that on June 21st, at the partnership's command of Bringhurst, Hinckley and himself was formed under the title of the Bringhurst Garment Co. for the purpose of selling the products manufactured by the Bringhurst Corp.

Ownership Denied.

Neidt declared he financed the selling company to the extent of $2000 and exhibited a copy of an alleged agreement between the three partners. He also introduced checks totaling approximately $7000, which he testified had been paid the Bringhurst Corporation for merchandise, including the 400 mannequins cited in the reclamation petition.

Jones then took the stand and declared that "the Garment Display Co. never bought a dime's worth of goods from the Bringhurst Corporation." Jones told the Referee that he became a director of the corporation last August after receiving one share of stock for legal services. On Aug. 16 he loaned the concern $1000, he testified, and endorsed notes for an additional $2500 at the Cherokee National Bank.

"On the very same day I began to learn things about this Garment Display Co." he said. "I had asked about it before making the loan and was told it was just a trade name. I found, however, that it was being used to take the profit away from the stockholders of the corporation and give them to the members of the partnership."

Secret Division of Profits.

"The manufacturing cost of the merchandise units of the corporation was between $4 and $5. These units sold for $10 to $12. The corporation paid the corporation about 40 cents profit and divided the rest. This practice is what contributed largely to the subsequent bankruptcy."

Jones spoke with heat and "from the shoulder." He charged that the discounts of the corporation went through a secret bank account of the partnership. "As the result of that little scheme Hinckley still has approximately $1000 belonging to the stockholders and creditors of the Bringhurst Corporation," Jones declared.

Hinckley is in California. It is said, but neither Neidt nor Bringhurst, who was also present, offered a contradiction to Jones' testimony. Referee Coles denied the reclamation petition on the ground that the petitioners failed to show they ever owned the 400 mannequins.

The Bringhurst Corporation was placed in bankruptcy Nov. 3, with debts of $15,722, against which there is the $2500 derived from the sale of assets.

BELLEVILLE FIRE CHIEF'S FUNERAL ON SATURDAY

Frank R. Dinges' Death Attributed to Injury to Lungs During Resuscitation.

The funeral of Frank R. Dinges, late chief of the Belleville, Ill., fire department, will be Saturday morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, Belleville.

Dinges died yesterday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville from a lung abscess believed to have been contracted last May when he made an unsuccessful attempt to rescue a man and six children from a burning house. The householder, John Haas, was trapped with his family in a three-room frame dwelling. Dinges and his wife and one child to safety and then returned to bring out the others. Chief Dinges made several efforts to break through flames and smoke to the rescue but was beaten back; his lungs choked.

HEADLESS BODY IDENTIFIED AS THAT OF CLEVELAND, O. MAN

John Zoubeck Found Dead Near Patton, Mo.; Was Last Seen

There in September.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PATTON, Mo., Dec. 2.—The body of a man whose head was found 30 feet away near this village yesterday was identified today through letters in the clothing as that of John Zoubeck of Cleveland, O., 30 years old, a union painter. Whether he was killed deliberately or died of exposure and was decapitated by wild animals is not apparent. The body had not been robbed.

Last Sept. 5 Everett Johnson, State highway patrolman, found Zoubeck in a Ford sedan stuck in the mud on the road near the place where the body was found yesterday. He offered to help get the car out, but says Zoubeck replied: "Never mind, I'll just leave it here."

No more was seen of Zoubeck but three days later Sheriff Mathews took the machine to Fredericktown. Through the Ohio license number he located relatives and a brother, Charles Zoubeck, came from Cleveland, identified himself and took the machine.

Zoubeck has a sister in Little Rock, Ark.

SWEAR WOMAN DANCED AFTER ALLEGED INJURY

Railroad Witnesses Hard in Miss Ethel Proffitt's Suit—
To Produce Snapshots.

The plea of Miss Ethel M. Proffitt for $65,000 damages from the Chicago &amp; Alton Railroad is expected to go to the jury late today, after the defense completes its efforts to discredit her story.

Counsel on the railroad again are attacking by means of 315 snapshots of Miss Proffitt taken by a railroad detective, who made love to her for the purpose, her assertions that she was so injured on a C. &amp; A. train in June, 1925, that she has been unable to work. The plaintiff's attorneys have subpoenaed the detective, Will Wright, and will try to have him admitted as a witness. Miss Proffitt is to appear in Federal Court yesterday's session in Federal Court, the railroad produced many witnesses from Jonesburg, Mo., Miss Proffitt's home town. These people, friends and neighbors of the plaintiff, many of them having known her all her life, testified they saw her dancing, riding horseback and driving an automobile after the accident.

Among the visitors from Jonesburg was the Ed McCulloch family—father, mother, Hazel, Mabel, known all her life, testified they promoted a public dance in September of 1925 and that Miss Proffitt attended. Hazel was the ticket seller, Mabel was the check-room girl, and her father was master of ceremonies. All said they saw the plaintiff dancing. The defense produced five youths who testified they had danced with Miss Proffitt on this occasion.

BEER AND WHISKY SEIZED
AT THREE SALLOONS BY POLICEBrewing Plant Found in Building
Next to Barroom on Chouteau Avenue.

Three saloons were raided yesterday by police, who reported seized quantities of home-brew and moonshine whisky. Six saloon keepers and bartenders were arrested.

In the saloon of Tony Susa, 1239 Chouteau avenue, the raiders followed a stairway to the second floor of an adjoining building, where they found a brewing plant, 70 gallons of beer, and 1056 bottles of beer. In the basement was a seven-ton tank set in concrete in the floor, containing a quantity of whisky.

In the saloon of Edward Jackson, 16-18 South Eighteenth street, opposite Union Station, police reported finding 23 cases of beer and 60 gallons of mash. In the saloon of Thomas Paller, 1801 South Second street, 28 gallons of whisky were seized.

IN RUSSIA 40 YEARS, CLAIMS
AMERICAN CITIZENSHIPMan and Wife Would Enter U. S.
Not as Immigrants, but as Native With Their 8 Children.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Though they lived in Russia for 40 years raised a family of eight children there and speak only Russian, John Marks, 47 years old, and his wife, Helen, 46, told immigration officials they were both natives of this country and for years had been having money to return.

In support of their claim, both presented passports listing Cook County, Illinois, as their birthplace. Both said they were taken to Russia when they were infants. Investigation of their story has been begun.

SUMMER SHOE DAY TO GET PLACE IN SUN

Convention Decides on May 15
With Ceremony Something Like Straw Hat's Debut.

"Summer shoe day" is to be held by American shoe merchants on May 15 annually, to coincide with the time many men put away their fedoras and derbies and don straw hats.

Action to this end was taken yesterday at the closing session of the three-day convention of the Southwestern Shoe Retailers' Association at Hotel Statler. The members plan a campaign for the observance of this day, which they hope will boost sales by inducing men to shift footgear as they do to hats.

Another action concerned sending a request to society editors of newspapers throughout the country to describe slippers, as well as dresses, in telling about women's costumes at social functions.

The convention which this year drew an attendance of about 3000 from the 48 states and Canada, will be held here again about this time next year, in connection with the annual Pageant of Footwear Fashions given by the St. Louis Shoe Manufacturers' and Wholesalers' Association.

Officers Are Elected.

Arthur E. Elbke, vice president of the Shoe Shoe Co., was re-elected president of the Southwestern association. Other officers are: George B. Gayou of St. Louis, secretary-treasurer; Reuben Stiefel of Memphis, Tenn.; A. J. Kempner of Little Rock; H. W. Bergman of Greenville, Miss., and Joseph W. Miller of Moberly, Mo., vice presidents.

A. H. Geuting, a Philadelphia shoe dealer, told yesterday's meeting of the important connection between shoe stores and men's wear houses in this day of the short skirt.

"We owe thanks to the flapper for the many colorful shades in the hosiery market today," he said, "which make our business so good. Beautiful hosiery brings charm and color to the shoe business. They make women stop and look, and the masculine eye goes immediately to the beautiful leg, clothed in exquisite hose. Hosiery has become an indispensable facet of the shoe business."

Mere Man Called Vain.

Much attention was given at the convention to women's shoe styles. Miss Jesse Adler, owner of a chain of men's shoe stores in New York City, shifted the subject in a talk yesterday.

"Vanity, thy name is man," he said. "Man is a peacock under the skin; why not let him wear what he wants?" Why let the feminine artistic sense run riot in brilliant pedal innovations when more men must satisfy himself with sober blacks and tans? Why not let man into the orgy of fashionable footwear, even to resurrecting the gay cavalier boots of the age of chivalry, when man was permitted to indulge his love for personal adornment without incurring the scorn of less fastidious males?"

The tans, blacks and brown for men, Adler continued, will come next season in brogues and "half-moon" styles and French types, with fancy trimming and stitching. Blond and pastel shades even will be indulged to a limited extent, he said, but while there is some talk of selling men's shoes with inch-and-a-half heels, he didn't advise merchants to carry many of these.

Woman Loses $200 in Holdup. A purse, containing $200 and a gold watch, were snatched from Miss Gertrude Huse, a school teacher, at 15 South Taylor avenue, by a Negro, who accosted her as she was walking near her home at 8 p. m. yesterday.

SHERWOOD EDDY SAYS WORLD NEEDS GOSPEL

Y. M. C. A. Leader Declares
Church Must Choose Between Prophecy and Silence.

George Sherwood Eddy, Y. M. C. A. student secretary for Asia, and noted student of world conditions, speaking to 200 St. Louis ministers in Third Baptist Church today, said:

"We need the whole gospel to meet the world situation. When we divide the gospel, as some try to do, into a personal gospel and a social gospel, we have not even half a gospel—we have nothing. But how few Christians see, live and proclaim the whole gospel!"

"Statistics look good—29,000,000 Protestant Christians, 19,000,000 Catholic Christians—but how many of them are applying the gospel to their lives? It takes 40 adult Christians a year, or one of them 40 years, on an average, to add one convert to the church. Even that gospel is not us to make credit, for most of the conversions of the churches are through the Sunday schools or come from the world of high-powered evangelistic workers."

"We are divided into 180-odd sects, which compete in many places where they should co-operate, and we are further divided. I want to be fundamental on the truth, and modern in my view of life, but I will not be a fundamentalist, or a modernist, or any 'ist' that stands for a partial gospel."

Shows Russian Cartoon.

Eddy, who led a party through Russia last summer, displayed Russian cartoon, which pictured Christianity as the tool of capitalism, as representing a danger to be avoided. He described the "golden rule" method of William P. Haggard, Indianapolis manufacturer, whose employees vote on the control of the property, absentee stockholders having no vote.

The Hoover is sold on our "pay-as-you-use" plan and as a special Christmas offer a Hoover will be delivered to your home for the small down payment of $1.00, the balance in easy payments on your light bills. ## Remove the Shadow of Dishwashing Call in a WALKER

Three times a day, 365 days a year, the most disagreeable of all household tasks is dishwashing. "We had such a lovely time, and your dinner was just perfection," enthuse the departing guests—and then all of the joy of accomplishment slips through the door as you view the overwhelming stack of unwashed dishes. Why continue this experience? Call in a Walker Dishwasher—then pile your dishes in from meal to meal. When the spirit moves, push a button, turn a valve, and your dishes will be washed electrically. Costs less than a cent an hour to operate—See the Walker Dishwasher demonstrated in our New Store.

Pardon us While we speak to Your Husband

Now suppose we slip off here in a corner and answer that question that's chasing itself around in your mind.

You couldn't possibly make her happier, you couldn't pay a more lasting tribute to her big place in your heart or gain a bigger place in her's than by lifting some of the burden of house work from her shoulders. She may have let drop a hint for furs, or a wrist watch or a new table service, but we'll wager you that if one of these labor-savers shines forth from under the Christmas tree this year—she'll just naturally think you're the finest man in the U. NORTHERN CHINESE ARMY RETREATING FROM FOOCHOW
Cantonese Forces Expected to Occupy City Tomorrow—Japanese Gunboats on the Scene.

NORTHERN GENERAL JOINS OPPOSITION
Great Britain Disinclined to Take Aggressive Measures Unless British Subjects Are Endangered.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 2.—The Cantonese army is expected to occupy Foochow tomorrow, a dispatch received from there today says.

Since the local and civil authorities there have joined in preserving the order and are friendly to the invading Southerners, the situation is reported easier. It is said there is little likelihood of further fighting.

Northern Forces Are Retreating From Foochow.

AMOY, Dec. 2.—Relief was in sight today for the big foreign colony at Foochow, which has been in danger for several days as Northern and Southern troops fought for the control of Fukien Province. Telegrams from there say Japanese gunboats have arrived.

In the fighting south and west of Foochow yesterday 300 casualties were reported.

The forces of Gen. Chang, subordinate of Marshal Yuan Chuan, Fang, one of the allies of the Northern army that is resisting the Cantonese revolutionary army, are retreating toward Yenpingfu, northwest of Foochow. Gen. Chang, who was commander of all the forces of South Fukien Province except Amoy city and island, expected to return to Foochow and there, uniting with Gen. Li Sen Chun, make a stand against the Cantonese.

However, Gen. Li turned against his former allies in favor of the Cantonese, and when Chang's forces encountered superior forces of the Cantonese they were obliged to drop back toward Yenpingfu instead of returning to Foochow.

AMOY, Dec. 2.—Relief was in sight today for the big foreign colony at Foochow, which has been in danger for several days as Northern and Southern troops fought for the control of Fukien Province. Telegrams from there say Japanese gunboats have arrived.

In the fighting south and west of Foochow yesterday 300 casualties were reported.

The forces of Gen. Changi, subordinate of Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang, one of the allies of the Northern army that is resisting the Cantonese revolutionary army, are retiring toward Yenpingfu, northwest of Foochow. Gen. Changi, who was commander of all the forces of South Fukien Province except Amoy city and island, extended his retire upon Foochow and there, uniting with Gen. Li Sen-Chun, made a stand against the Cantonese.

However, Gen. Li turned against his former allies in favor of the Cantonese and when Changi's forces encountered superior numbers of Cantonese they were obliged to drop back toward Yenpingfu instead of returning to Foochow.

Naval forces stationed at Foochow have given way to the Cantonese. At first it now appears that Foochow and the entire Province of Fukien is certain to be lost to Marshal Sun and the Northerners and its capture and that of Chekiang will be made easy for the Southerners.

The routing of Gen. Changi and the treachery of Gen. Li, it is not believed, will make the situation of the foreigners any more difficult, as the city already is under martial law and business is suspended.

American Destroyers Leave Shanghai for Foochow.

By the Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, Dec. 2.—The American destroyers Hart left here today for Foochow. The Hart, which is part of the American Asiatic fleet, was dispatched to the Fukien Province, in response to the request of the American Consul at Foochow, who sent an urgent call, saying the situation was serious.

Admiral Sia Chen-Ping, Civil Governor of the province, has guaranteed to protect foreigners, believing he will be able to cope with the situation, which so far as foreigners are concerned, has been intensified by the continued success of the Cantonese in their northward advance.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Dec. 2.—Foreign gunboats to protect foreigners at Foochow, have been requested of their Governments by Consuls stationed at that river port, 35 miles from the sea. Within the city's walls are approximately 200 each of British, Americans and Japanese and 100 of other nationalities amid a Chinese population of 700,000.

Foreign Office Regards Grave Disputes as Exaggerated.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 2.—Great Britain's policy on the problem of the Chinese customs is fundamentally the same as that of the United States. It was authoritatively stated today. It is regarded as a problem for the Chinese to settle.

British forces are not likely to be involved in the anticipated struggle between the Cantonese and the Northerners for control of the Hankow customs unless British lives are endangered.

The Foreign Office continues to receive panicky messages from the business communities of Hankow and Shanghai. It is stated, however, that nearly all the information from the latter city appears to exaggerate the gravity of the situation.

Elihu Root Urges Research
To Get at Base of Trouble
In "Impossible" Maze of LawsCalls for "Associated Effort" to Correct Maladjustment of Statutes With Needs of Community.

Elihu Root, authority on international law, former Senator and cabinet member, in an address before the Harvard Law School Endowment Fund in New York, Nov. 9, urged "associated effort" toward the revision and adjustment of the nation's laws. He indorsed the plea of Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard Law School, for a thorough study of the statutes, made in an interview published in the Post-Dispatch, Oct. 31, last. The text of Root's address follows:

The proposals which are now made by the Harvard law school are of vital consequence, not merely to the bar, not merely to that law school or to all law schools, but to all business, all production and trade, all professional endeavor, all family life, all development in the civilization of our country.

I think that among all the many admirable law schools which we have in the United States, the Harvard law school is well entitled to make itself the leader in this movement; entitled by its past achievement; entitled by the character and ability of the men who conduct it; entitled by the evidences that it has given of the possession of the spirit in which the work must be conducted if it is to be successful.

Evils Long Admitted.

We all know that there are evils in the administration of the law in our country. It is not necessary to enumerate them. Lawyers know that they exist; laymen know it. A thousand suggestions have been made for the remedy; now of this, and then of that; and then of the other evil; but they are all quite unsatisfactory. We cannot resolve the conclusion that somehow there has come to be a lack of proper adjustment between the administration of the law and the needs of our community—our national community.

Now that has continued a long time, and it is to be found in many jurisdictions, differing enough among themselves to indicate that it is not the result of the specific administration of any one jurisdiction. It seems clear that for dealing with it something more than first impressions will be necessary.

Every statute which is made by a Legislature, or by an Interim Assembly, is put into the midst of a multitude of forces in the life of a community. What results is merely a resultant of all the forces.

Reconsideration Needed.

A reconsideration of many of the things which we have been holding to may show that a little adjustment to make them fit into the life of the world as it is now would make an enormous difference in the ease and effectiveness of applying the principles.

Every statute which is made by an Interim Assembly, or by an Interim Assembly, is put into the midst of a multitude of forces in the life of a community. What results is merely a resultant of all the forces.

Analogy in Banking.

You remember for how many years our financial system was at sixes and sevens; how every few years there came some great panic which put a stop to business and caused widespread ruin, and how, after every panic attempts were made to patch up the system; but at length there was a general effort to deal with the subject in a systematic, thorough investigation and consideration of the underlying principles which must be followed in the framing of a financial system for a great continent.

That was done under the Monetary Commission of which the late Senator Aldrich was the head, and the results of the study of that Commission were put upon the table by the Federal Reserve Board act.

Everybody can now see that if we had been going under the old catch-as-catch-can method, we should have been turned into a lawless, strike-prone mob during the last great war. As it is, there is no lack of part.

The system which was worked out upon the basis of thorough, scientific research, has proved entirely adequate for the rapidly growing, vastly increasing demands of the production and business of the country.

Now, I think we have got to deal with this subject of law and its administration in somewhat the same way. The process reminds one of the great new departure in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries when, as the long night of the Middle Ages was coming to a close, Descartes, Galileo, Francis Bacon and their followers departed from the old method of teaching students what Aristotle said, and explaining and commenting upon Aristotle, and assuming that the whole of human knowledge was contained within the four corners of the work that he had left.

Research Brings Light.

With this new leadership of these men, the mind of the world began to inquire for itself, and to dig down to fundamental and to a real natural state of things. From that period has gone on ever progressing the development of science and its administration to the needs of this tumultuous and complicated world just as they were adjusted to the needs of the simple world in which the old judges in the old English reports had to deal.

I am grateful to the gentlemen who have inaugurated this movement in the Harvard Law School for affording us a body of men who, we can feel confident, will do their work in the true spirit of the unselfish seeker for truth.

The Foreign Office continues to receive panicky messages from the business communities of Hankow and Shanghai. It is stated, however, that nearly all the information from the latter city appears to exaggerate the gravity of the situation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Under the heading of "Plain Facts Concerning the Mexican Oil Laws," the Mexican Embassy issued yesterday an official statement which, without directly mentioning the controversy between the American State Department and the Calles Government, places a different construction on the oil laws from that given currency by Secretary Kellogg and his aids.

A paraphrase of the Mexican statement, which manifestly was called forth by recent outgrowths, official and otherwise, from the State Department, was published exclusively in late editions of yesterday's Post-Dispatch. The statement throws new light on the matter in which Mexico, under her Constitution of 1917, is working toward the realization of her oil law.

Compulsory Vaccination.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
It seems to me that the presentation of such articles as appeared recently in your "Letters from the People" on the subject of vaccination without presenting "the other side" is pernicious. It cultivates prejudices where fair-mindedness and love of truth should be cultivated. Apropos to that discussion there occurred in "Science News," supplement to Science of Nov. 26, the enclosed clipping, giving information presumably from well-informed and unprejudiced sources. Such an article as this, or a brief statement of facts tending to bring out the truth, printed alongside of the one referred to above, such articles would be of inestimable service to the community.

"Smallpox had more than its average potent-killing power in 18 states and seven of the Canadian provinces in the first half of this year. If the same proportion of deaths had occurred throughout the country that prevailed in the single State of Arizona, 7000 lives would have been lost of the total 20,561 cases that occurred in this country in the six-month period. From surveys of Metropolitan Life Insurance statistics it is evident that the large numbers of unvaccinated persons both here and in Canada provide ample material for a smallpox situation that may at any time lead to catastrophe. Prevention of the disease by vaccination and re-vaccination is of vital importance to both countries."

DR. A. O. SHAKLEE.
(The Post-Dispatch takes pleasure in reprinting the excerpt from "Science News." Our letter column has been open to those who wish to present the other side in the discussion on compulsory vaccination, but this is the first letter received in defense of the method. ED. Post-Dispatch.)

Noise Sirens.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
It seems to me there ought to be an uprising of this entire community against the fearful use of the siren horn on Fire Department automobiles between the hours of 10 o'clock at night and 5 o'clock in the morning, as there seems in my opinion, no necessity for other than a bell, which would clear the way of the few pedestrians encountered at that time, whereas the siren wakes up and disturbs the entire community over an area of several square miles as the firemen go to and from the fire.

Ping Pong.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In a recent article in your esteemed paper, you had occasion to cast reflections upon a most worthy game and in behalf of the many followers of table tennis, better known as Ping Pong, I want to speak.

Your comments about the game pale into insignificance against the words of an earlier cynic. This writer said that Ping Pong, to be properly played, must be contested with the proper atmosphere and the proper conditions, with a few dozen bowls of incense burning around. Then the atmospheric scheme is not entirely completed until the players have mastered the Chinese language.

Seriously, Mr. Editor, Ping Pong is a most excellent game. Such organizations like the Y. M. C. A., K. of C. and Y. M. H. A. go in for this form of indoor athletics very extensively. The Y. M. H. A., for example, holds two Ping Pong contests every year, the last one having had 50 entrants. Many of these players are far from being fellows who carry handkerchiefs in their sleeves. In fact, a good portion of them are most excellent players of football, who along with other players, get a real thrill in indulging in a game that requires accuracy and speed.

Aviation Field Too Far Out.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE writer is a frequent visitor to St. Louis and as a rule has very little reason to complain of the way your citizens conduct their various air affairs. However, as I get around from city to city the impressions I get of St. Louis may be a little more pessimistic than those of the man on the street who makes this fine city his home. First your aviation field: Do not know just how far it is from the business section, but upon having an urgent call to make 300 miles from here was seriously thinking of taking a plane. Upon referring to the phone book I found the aviation station was surprised to learn I would have to go a long ways towards Kansas City before I could start east. Seems to me the field could be placed along your levee, either north or south of the busy section of the city. Being an ex-flier of the days when we still used a front elevator, 1911, I still know enough of the "flying game" to recognize a landing place—so here I am hoping when I return ships will be landing in St. Louis and not half way to Kansas City.

BRIDGE BILL GOES TO ALDERMEN.

Finding that he was unable to iron out all the differences between the Terminal Railroad Association, the Citizens' Committee and the independent terminal roads, Mayor Miller has turned over the bridge exchange ordinance to the Board of Aldermen for action.

The bill which will be submitted to the board has been amended since its approval by the Citizens' Committee, in accordance with suggestions of the Post-Dispatch. It has been greatly improved in several respects.

With regard to the Eads Bridge, the Terminal railroads agree to give the city the use of the upper deck, free of tolls, immediately upon the adoption of the ordinance, and, as far as possible, to guarantee the city's use of the Eads Bridge and tunnel, by agreeing to defend and prosecute all litigation attacking the rights accorded the city by the Terminal.

In addition to the specific agreement regarding the building of approaches and other improvements, the Terminal railroads agree to construct all improvements required for the handling of St. Louis traffic, as needed.

Touching the use of the Municipal Bridge by independent railroad companies, the original bill has been amended by inserting the mandate of the Supreme Court, which destroyed the terminal monopoly, requiring the Terminal Association to grant the use of terminal facilities to any nonmember road, "upon such just and reasonable terms and regulations as will in respect to use, character and cost of service, place it upon as nearly an equal plane as may be in respect to expenses and charges as that occupied by the proprietary companies." This is the only point in the amended ordinance upon which there were differences between the Terminal railroads and the independent roads.

President Miller of the Terminal Association, verbally and in writing, has interpreted this to mean that any independent railroad will be charged its pro rata share for the use of the bridge itself when under control of the Terminal Association, or any facilities of the Terminal Railway. He declares that the charges will be governed by the actual service rendered and the cost of the particular facility or facilities which are used by the independent railroad. The full terminal tariff will not be charged unless the independent railroad makes full use of the terminal facilities.

Although this amendment and interpretation were accepted at first by President Cotter of the Manufacturers' Railway, he has insisted since upon a specific definition of the basis of charges which independent railroads will have to pay to the Terminal Association for the use of the bridge. The wording of this amendment is the difference between the railroad interests which the Mayor says he cannot settle.

The Post-Dispatch accepted the amendment of section 5 of the bill, upon which the controversy hinges, as satisfactory. We believe the terms will be worked out equitably and that the way will be open for the use of the bridge and terminal facilities, if needed, by independent railroads, upon just and reasonable terms. We have an open mind on this point. If an acceptable formula can be found which will give better assurance that all railroads will have access to the bridge on fair terms, we shall welcome it. We believe the Terminal railroads are inclined to accept a fair bill and to carry out its provisions for the improvement of bridge and terminal facilities and terminal service to meet all the needs of St. Louis traffic.

The Terminal railroads agree in the bill to the construction of the southern approach, which is already provided for in the bond issue, giving it and other roads serving that territory access to the bridge over an approach independent of the Terminal Association's approaches.

We are inclined to think that the Mayor has taken the proper step in turning over the bill to the Board of Aldermen, which is the only body that can take definite effective action on the measure. In the board, hearings and discussions will be public. Whatever decisions are made will be incorporated in the bill for adoption.

The Burlington Railroad has crashed into the news with the following proclamation: "Along its right-of-way IS produced two-thirds of the oats, both mild and wild, more than half the corn, all of the bananas, five-fourths of the paw-paws, the gayest Irish potatoes and the loftiest silk hose in the United States."

A higher-up to whom the copy was submitted frowned at this exuberant outburst. "We can't let this statement go out," he righteously decreed. "The Burlington has a reputation to sustain." Whereupon he crossed out IS and substituted ARE. At a still higher-up desk, however, the ARE was changed back to IS. Then, after the general counsel, the president and the chairman of the board had splashed their school-girl complexions with patches of purple in bitter controversy, the question of whether it should be IS or ARE was referred to the leading universities. That referendum showed a slight but probably tainted majority for ARE. Anyhow, there are rumors of a gigantic slush fund by the ARE which the Reed committee will probably have to investigate.

The bill embodies a contract between the city and the Terminal Railroad Association. These are the big interests to be served, and the concern of the city is to promote the public interest, and assure the full use of the Municipal Bridge by any and all railroads serving St. Louis.

FOLLOWING THE WAY OF FALL.

Attention is directed to a misleading story from Washington on the Fall-Doheny trial concerning the testimony of E. C. Finney, First Assistant Secretary of the Interior. The witness' version of the Doheny lease relates that Fall was absent when the Pearl Harbor contract with Doheny's company was signed; that the negotiations for the Government were conducted by himself (Finney). Admiral J. K. Robison of the Navy and Director H. Foster Bain of the Bureau of Mines, that they concluded the Doheny company's bid was the best; that they so advised Fall, who was in New Mexico and received a wire from him that "If Robison and Secretary of the Navy (Denby) think best, close immediately."

Nothing secretive about this. No one up the sleeve—not even a lowly deuce. Everything in the open—the bright and shining clear. Certainly no suspicion can attach to Fall in this transaction.

The report is correct, but it is a report of Finney's direct testimony. Under cross-examination, however, the witness' narrative presents Fall in a quite different light. As reported by a staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch the cross-examination of Finney revealed that the Pearl Harbor contract was but a preliminary move in the big deal. The big deal was made eight months later, when the whole reserve was leased to Doheny. Had Finney been consulted about that second contract? No. Did he know that such a lease was being negotiated? No. The witness, glancing timidly at his former chief, Fall, acknowledged, in a low voice: "I never heard of the lease—until some time after it was made."

That second lease was the "gray." It was out of this lease that Doheny felt he would be in bad luck if he did not make $100,000,000. No subordinate had a hand in this. Finney was as blissfully ignorant of this bargain between Fall and Doheny as he was of the $100,000 handed over to Fall by Doheny in the mute black satchel, into which Walsh of Montana put the tongues of accusing furies.

The moral is obvious. In following the Fall-Doheny trial, be sure to get all of the testimony. You can depend on getting all of it in the Post-Dispatch. And in this connection it is permissible, we think, to say that the most complete history of the oil scandal—step-by-step in all of its ramifications, from Bob La Follette's motion for investigation up to and including the current trial—has been told in the columns of this paper.

BIG BUSINESS IN THE FURROW.

What the Business Men's Commission on Agriculture may be able to do towards solving the farmer's problem only time will tell. The appointment of this board by the United States Chamber of Commerce, it may be confessed, will stage no ovation. At the same time, the disparaging comment of Representative Dickinson of Iowa, who scowls at the new-born infant in its cradle and brands it a ne'er-do-well, is quite ungracious. Give the lad a chance.

Big Business, of which the United States Chamber of Commerce is the quasi-official spokesman, has more than once been criticized for its indifference to the farmer's troubles. It has been charged with absorption in its own affairs. Perhaps it has been culpable. But now that it is penitent and trying to make amends for its former delinquency it ought to be welcomed into the fold. If an outlander like Shippard can be hailed as a jolly good fellow at a White House breakfast, will not the sturdy dirt farmer heartily bid Big Business put its feet under the table? Of course he will.

And why is not this role made to order for Big Business? The scenario can be done in a word. The farmer can't make money. Making money is Big Business' dish. To stay in the figure, that is where it shines. Further, the objection that agriculture is barbed-wired with conditions peculiar to itself and different from the obstacles Big Business encounters must be overruled. Tackling new adversaries, bowing over strange enemies—that is no novelty for Big Business; it is one of its daily dozen.

Only the other day an original remedy was prescribed for the farmer. The healer in this instance was Arthur Williams, who, addressing the American Academy of Political Science, urged the electrification of our farms. He said in substance, that agriculture was our one non-electrified big industry. He admitted it would be a tremendous financial undertaking. He estimated the cost at $15,000,000,000. Yet he believed if the country's public utility interests could be enlisted the thing could be done. In any event, he insisted that agriculture could never occupy its proper place in the family group of prosperous industries until it modernized itself by harnessing electricity to the work of the farm. Subsidies, co-operative marketing and all the other relief measures that have been proposed were dismissed by him as futile. They would necessarily advance prices, he argued, increase the cost of living and, in short, complete the vicious circle of inflation.

This electrification plan, we submit, demonstrates that, despite all the agitation of agriculture's plight and all the propaganda in behalf of various measures, the situation still invites investigation. It still invites, or, rather, summons the concentrated study of our best practical minds—that is to say, our best business minds. Converting agriculture from a losing to a paying basis is, after all, a business proposition, and one that must be solved. Let Big Business roll up its sleeves, split on its hands and go to it.

IS, "ARE" OR "AIN'T"?

The Burlington Railroad has crashed into the news with the following proclamation: "Along its right-of-way IS produced two-thirds of the oats, both mild and wild, more than half the corn, all of the bananas, five-fourths of the paw-paws, the gayest Irish potatoes and the loftiest silk hose in the United States."

We are inclined to think that the Mayor has taken the proper step in turning over the bill to the Board of Aldermen, which is the only body that can take definite effective action on the measure. In the board, hearings and discussions will be public. Whatever decisions are made will be incorporated in the bill for adoption.

The Burlington has a reputation to sustain.

There is one point on which the technique of the movies is faulty—in fact, terrible. The actors have learned to put the strap of their helmets behind their ears; they have learned how to put on a gas mask; the directors have learned that gas shells fall with a "plop" and do not explode, but, gentlemen, in the name of historical accuracy, teach the actors that a hand grenade cannot be thrown as one would throw a baseball. The aspiring grenade thrower throws them over his head, with a stiff arm movement. If the grenade is thrown as one would toss a baseball, the net result is a broken arm, even for motion picture actors.

If Marie becomes reconciled to her erring son, Rumania will have a Christmas Carol.

My happiness is perfect
When I'm on my way to you.

George Hannauer at 15 Was George Hannauer, a native of St. Louis, who began his railroad work at the age of 15 as a messenger for the Terminal Railway Association, when the Union Station was at Twelfth and Poplar streets, yesterday was elected president of the Boston & Maine Railway, one of the most important Eastern railroads. "He was a persistent worker and nothing could stop him," one said.

During the office of the Superintendent as a clerk in 1890, he became chief clerk, and in 1903 was made superintendent of the Medina Ferry Co., an affiliated property. He frequently would be found at work in East St. Louis at 2 a.m., said an employee of the terminal, who was associated with him in those days.

Book Chicago Job in 1907.
After leaving St. Louis in 1907, he became supervisor of the Chicago & Indiana Railway, which he advanced to general superintendent, general manager, and in 1920 was elected vice president, position which he now holds. He is president of the Chicago & Indiana Railway, which operates under lease the lines of the Chicago Junction Railway.

It was in the early days of his career that he saw the need for a device to eliminate the hazardous risk of brakemen who rode cars on the "hump," a steep incline down which cars are released, even by gravity, on the classification tracks. Each car must be accompanied by a man to apply the brakes, and the occupation is considered most dangerous by railroad men.

The annual toll of lives from accidents in this work is large, and Hannauer's name became known throughout railroad circles as inventor of the electric car retarder.

Invention Great Success

The device is best described as a track brake, metal brake shoes being placed on either side of the rails and held there by pneumatic pressure in such a manner that as the wheel reaches them they are forced to skid, and the car is stopped by friction. Speed of the car is determined by the amount of pressure used.

His success was the first real step in controlling the speed of cars that it was said Hannauer had "made a box car do everything but talk." The devices were installed in the Chicago yards and Illinois Central now is installing them at Valley Junction, near St. Louis.

Three brothers live in St. Louis: George W. Hannauer, 31; Allen, former president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange; Charles E. of 3510 Utah and Charles A. of 2415 South Thirteenth street.

The second annual exhibition of Prints of the year has been opened in the City Art Museum, and will continue until Dec. 27. The exhibition consists of two groups of prints each, one depicting a work of "modernism" and the other of those who refine themselves to traditional treatments.

The varieties of prints are from relief, intaglio and printings and include wood cuts, linoleum cuts, block prints, etchings, aquatints, color aquatints, drypoints and lithographs.

Notable among the etchings done in the traditional manner are "Pawpaw Marshes" by Frank W. Benson; "Westminster Flats," by Andrew R. Butler; "Douarnenez," by Kerr Eby; "Wayside Inn Oaks," by Childe Hassam; "Dusk in the Dazzard," by Eugene Higgins; "Highland," by Troy Kinney; "Alaska Coast," by Roy Pardee; "Stones of Venice," by Edward R. Butler; "Michigan Avenue," by Schneider; "Saint Jerome," by French; "T. Wood, and "Loggia Poldesca," by Louis Rosenthal.

One of the most charming wood cuts in this group is "House in Dingle, Nova Scotia," by T. W. Mason.

Distinguished one is "Pastur," by Timothy Cole.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—Charles F. Morse, former president of the Kansas City Stock Yards Co., died at his home here. He was 76 years old. Most of Mr. Morse's life was spent in the West, where he was well known in railroad circles. After the Civil War, in which he served as an officer, he became general supply agent for the Burlington & Missouri River Railroad. He later was appointed superintendent of the road in Nebraska.

In 1874, he went with the Santa Fe as general superintendent. He retained that position in 1879 to become general superintendent of the Kansas City Stock Yards Co., which he became president in that office until his retirement in 1912. Mr. Morse was a man of 49,017 persons voted for it against. At that time the content of liquor was limited to 40 per cent, but it was increased to 21 per cent. Try this test any snowy fill them—one with Texaco and one with any other oil.

Leave them out overnight.
In the morning Texaco flows—all of it.

TEXACO FLOWS

But you need not wait for the first cold, snowy night to make sure of your oil. Try it with any other oil—and Texaco—anytime. Place the two bottles in a jar of crushed ice and salt for half an hour. The temperature will drop to about zero, yet Texaco flows freely.

When it begins to freeze, any motor oil not free of paraffin, begins to thicken

Then begins the starting resistance that burdens your battery—when every moving part is wiping its working surface bare of lubrication. One short minute of this action is more destructive than many miles of ordinary driving.

No such condition is necessary—Texaco Motor Oil flows at 32°, at zero—and below. For Texaco is free of paraffin wax, tars and cylinder stock. Be sure that your oil meets the severe test of winter driving. Golden Texaco does.

GOES BACK TO JAIL UNDER DEBTOR LAW

East St. Louisan's Plea for Freedom as Insolvent Denied by Court.

W. H. Todd of East St. Louis went back to the St. Clair County jail yesterday under the old Illinois debtor law, after a second attempt to regain freedom by court action.

Under the law, which has been invoked several times in the last year, he must remain in jail so long as his creditor, Fred Stark of Belleville, sees fit to pay the count of $1 a day for his confinement.

Last August, Todd's automobile hit Stark's machine on the Mascouah road. Stark sued for damages, getting a judgment for $300. Todd refused to pay and Stark had him jailed on the ground that his refusal to pay was with malicious intent.

Last week Todd sought freedom by a habeas corpus suit and was overruled by Circuit Judge Crow.
Then he petitioned the County Court, under the insolvent debtor act, and was at liberty under bond until yesterday when the court denied his petition.

In the County Court, Todd declared he sold his insurance policy back to the company to pay a $50
Police Court fine, but his testimony was that the fine never had been paid. Stark declared he would pay Todd's jail board indefinitely unless he satisfied the judgment.

Stillman Family Holds Reunion
By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Lena Wilson, forest sweetheart of Bud Stillman, is visiting in the fashionable Park avenue home of his recently reconciled parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stillman.

James A. Stillman, Bud's father, rushed home from Princeton as soon as he heard of the arrival and now the whole family is together again, including Baby Guy, who, the elder Stillman alleged in his divorce suit, was the child of an Indian guide.

HUNT LIQUOR-RUNNER AND KIDNAPED GUARDS

For Safety of U. S. Dry Agent and Fellow Prisoner.

By the Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 2.—Coast Guard cutters and a number of merchant vessels today continued on the lookout for the three-masted liquor-running French sloop, Arsene J., which broke away from a Coast Guard cutter Monday night during a gale in the Gulf of Mexico, with Assistant Federal Prohibition Administrator J. B. Matthews and Coast Guardsmen aboard.

Matthews had accompanied Petty Officer Handley aboard to guard the crew when it had been captured near the mouth of the Mississippi River by Coast Guard cutter CG-302, Capt. J. P. Edmunds, commander of the Biloxi, Miss., Coast Guard base, was in charge of the CG-302 at the time. He later reported that, due partly to shortage of gasoline, he lost the Arsene J. during a gale.

Matthews became assistant administrator of the Tenth District when Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews reorganized the prohibition unit, Sept. 1, 1925. Prior to that time Matthews had been a special investigator for Jackson when Jackson was director for Louisiana. Matthews, a Kentuckian, served several years in the Seventh Cavalry of the United States Army. Subsequently he was a revenue agent in the Kentucky-Tennessee Mountains and has a total Government service record of 40 years. During the war he was an agent of the Department of Justice.

DIVORCE FOR ACTOR'S WIFE WHO NAMED MISS RAMBEAU

Mrs. Mabel Manton's Decree Final in 90 Days; Given Two Children and Alimony.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—An interlocutory decree of divorce in favor of Mrs. Mabel Manton, actress and stage director, was signed in Supreme Court today. Marjorie Rambeau, actress, was mentioned by Mrs. Manton as the "other woman."

Mrs. Manton, who has custody of their two other children, was also awarded $30 a week permanent alimony. The decree becomes final in 90 days. The suit was not defended.

Today's decision disposed of a suit which had twice been before the court in the last year. The case was dropped last winter after it had gone to a jury and later returned to the bench.

Miss Dumbrell, who appeared at the first trial, did not appear in court subsequently. Mrs. Manton alleged that in August, 1925, she found Manton and the actress in a hotel room. Miss Rambeau said Manton was there as a hired guest, helping her in studying her theatrical lines.

CHURCHES TO READ 2 BOOKS OF BIBLE A CHAPTER A DAY

Simultaneous Campaign Set to Begin Jan. 1. Continuing Through February

Taking as a slogan "A Chapter a Day Keeps the Tempter Away" the Commission on Evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America today announced a simultaneous Bible reading "revival" which will begin Jan. 1 and continue through February.

Pointing out that it is the first time all the Evangelical denominations of the nation have united in a simultaneous Bible reading movement, the commission urges the use of the radio and the columns of the newspapers to bring the campaign to the attention of the 28 days of February.

The plan, which is to be participated in by all the Evangelical church bodies of America, calls for the reading of the books of Luke and Acts during the two months. The 24 chapters of Luke will be read during the first 24 days of January, and the 28 chapters of the Acts read during the 28 days of February.

Pointing out that it is the first time all the Evangelical denominations of the nation have united in a simultaneous Bible reading movement, the commission urges the use of the radio and the columns of the newspapers to bring the campaign to the attention of the 28 days of February.

Freed Owing to Lack of Treaty.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Absence of treaty arrangements between France and the United States resulted in the dismissal of a commandant against William Barton French, 31-year-old son of a wealthy New York family, arrested here three weeks ago on suspicion of being a fugitive from Nice, France, who has been at liberty under bail of $5000, was accused of having given a worthless check for $3500 to Thomas Cook & Sons on the Riviera. French agreed to be sent to a sanitarium.

Synopsis of Preceding Installments.

THE GRAY PHANTOM, hero of many near-criminal adventures, is astonished to read, at his retreat, on Long Island, that he is wanted for the brutal murder ofSILVANUS GAGE, reclusive tobacco dealer. The old man had received a threatening letter signed "Gray Phantom" and had gashed that name with his dying hand toTHE DUKE, an old enemy whom the Phantom had been instrumental in sending to prison.
Knowing that he is outwardly Granger, the Phantom realizes that the reporter is a member of the Duke's gang. Returning to New York himself to seek out the true culprit. But the real motive behind this bold stroke is to clear his name in the eyes of the public.HELEN HARDWICK, the reporter, who had been discovered the murderer. Realizing that he has been framed and that police will spend all their energies looking for him, the Gray Phantom goes to New York himself to seek out the true culprit. But the real motive behind this bold stroke is to clear his name in the eyes of the public.

newspaper reports of his capture, the Phantom accepts Dr. Bimble's hospitality. That night, while investigating the mechanism of the secret tunnel, he sees the hidden door open from the tobacco shop, heard the Gage housekeeper say, "His killing me" and watches her fall dead just as the door clicks shut. Next resembles the Gray Phantom that he had been taken prisoner.With characteristic promptness, the Phantom determines to see this man. Cleverly outwitting the network of police watching for him, he drives to the office of the Sphere, where a stroke ofluck lands the intoxicated Tor-

STAGE DRIVERS RESCUE SNOW-BOUND TOURISTS

Thirty-One Machines Trapped by Blizzard in High Pass of Sierras.

By the Associated Press

TONOPAH, Nev., Dec. 1.—More than 40 California-bound tourists who were trapped in a blizzard at Montgomery Pass, in the high Sierras near here, are alive today because of the heroic efforts of two old-time mushers, who rescued them when death seemed imminent because of cold and starvation.

The motor caravan, on its way to Southern California, was caught in the pass in one of the worst storms in years. There were 31 automobiles in the group.

For two days the motorists remained snowbound in the pass without food, blue with cold, and burned trunks and personal effects in a futile effort to escape the freezing temperature.

Meanwhile, Dan Haskin and Bill Farrington, veteran figures of the West, were pushing through with the motor stage to Bishop, California, aware of the beleaguered tourists ahead. Even though the snow was 10 feet deep in places, getting the stage through was a part of the day's work with them, and they were accomplishing the job when they came upon 22 of the stranded cars. Nine other machines almost covered by snow were concentrated a short distance farther on.

"What did we do with them?" Haskin repeated when questioned.

"Well, first we broke trail for them on to Benton, where Warren Davis, who runs a resort, filled 'em up with turkey and trimmings.

"And then we led 'em to the hot springs there, and helped 'em to get into the natural Turkish baths to thaw out—and that was all there was to it."

The incident recalls the story of the Donner party, whose fate was one of the outstanding tragedies of the old West. This party was trapped at the Eastern base of Sierra Pass, 200 miles north of Montgomery Pass. They were snowbound for six months, during which 42 of the band of 88 perished.

AMERICA WILL NEVER FAIL THEM

To carry on the work so well begun—

To continue to support the thousands of homeless little Near East Orphans—

To train their minds and bodies so that the future may bring happiness and independence—not only to themselves but to countless others whom they will influence by their leadership.

THAT'S the plea of these 35,000 little orphans whom America has already saved from starvation. These patient, thankful waifs are now being clothed, fed, sheltered and trained by the Near East Relief—the greatest philanthropic organization of its kind in the world.

You may remember how piteous the first cry for food—and how quickly America responded by sending tons of these most nourishing foods—milk, macaroni, cocoa, beans, bread, rice and KARO Syrup, the Great American Health Food. Seven foods that expert dieticians selected as the most health-building as well as the most economical.

And right now, 35,000 children from five to fifteen years of age are dependent on America's bounty for their present sustenance and training for the future. America has never failed them in their hour of need—and NEVER WILL!

So Answer the Call—Don't Let Go—Lift!

DECEMBER 5th IS "GOLDEN RULE" SUNDAY

when every thoughtful American Home will observe the "Golden Rule"—serve a meal comprised of the seven famous Near East Foods, namely—milk, macaroni, cocoa, beans, bread, rice and KARO Syrup—and then contribute to the cause of the Near East Orphans. Please see coupon below.

A Lesson for American Mothers!

THE many thousands of children now happy and healthy under the care and protection of the Near East Relief—provide a great object lesson for American Mothers. For these orphans—just recently starving—have grown strong and robust through the seven genuinely nutritious foods selected by the food experts of the Near East Relief for their high food value. Among these seven foods is KARO, the great American syrup.

These food experts know, and their Near East children show that as an invigorating health-building food, KARO ranks among the highest in food value.

Karo contains a large amount of the vitalizing food element, Dextrose, which your doctor can tell you has a tremendous health value. This essential element, Dextrose, is assimilated almost directly into the blood and tissue cells—and furnishes the fuel and energy of your body.

BAKER NOT IN FAVOR OF POLICE HOME RULE

Governor Thinks His Powers
Should be Increased Rather Than Reduced.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 2.—Proposed legislation to give the large cities of the State home rule over their police departments is not favored by Gov. Baker, except on an amendment giving the cities control over the Police Department appropriations. Instead of relinquishing control of Police Board appointments and policies, Baker advocates legislation giving the Governor control over Sheriffs and police forces throughout the State.

Baker outlined his position on home rule, a recurring subject in Missouri for 25 years, when asked for his views on legislative recommendations of the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice, which include a police home rule bill.

"I don't want to get into any controversy," said the Governor, "but I don't think much of the home rule proposition. If the Governor is to be held responsible for law and order in the State, he should be given authority over the Sheriffs and police throughout the State, rather than relinquish his present control over the police in the cities."

The present theory is that the Governor might use police in the cities to build up a personal political machine. There might be an objection along that line, but I am not trying to build up a machine and wouldn't know what to do with it if I had one.

He said he did not believe the State was ready for establishment of a State constabulary with general police powers. Labor organizations have consistently fought any move in Missouri toward establishment of a State constabulary on the ground the Governor might utilize such a force for duty in strikes.

Mrs. Bentley FORMERLY THE DIRECTOR OF GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE

Says: The best cup of coffee in the world can be easily ruined in serving.
If you put too thin milk in it. Or use cream with a slightly "off" taste.
Or cream that has been frozen. Ruined in flavor, in consistency, in color, even.

None of these things ever happens. I've discovered, if you use Condensed Milk. It supplies just the right finishing touch to a good cup of coffee. First of all, a golden, mellow color—not that muddy look which often results from using plain milk or thin cream. This is almost as important as the aroma and flavor of coffee. For, after all, we do eat with our eyes, and then the flavor—rich, full-bodied, distinctive—that comes from three things—the original richness of the milk, the natural flavor of a large part of the water, and most important of all, the delicious taste of the sugar.

It is this wonderful blended quality that Condensed Milk gives coffee.

HORNSBY AND BREADON CONFER AND DOVE OF PEACE IS ON THE JOB

New Salary Contract, Bonus and Interference Are Under Discussion

Cardinal Manager's Pay Likely to Approximate Babe Ruth's, if His Requests Are Approved — Landis to Have Breadon's Support at Next Meeting.

By J. Roy Stockton.

President Sam Breadon and Manager Rogers Hornsby of the World Champion Cardinals met at the Cardinal office this morning in the first session of their long-awaited conference and after they had been together for an hour or more Breadon announced that the meeting had been very pleasant and that while nothing definite had been done, prospects were that everything would turn out to everyone's satisfaction.

Breadon said the conference would be resumed some day next week.

It is virtually certain now that Hornsby and Breadon will come to an agreement satisfactory to all parties concerned, though there are so many points of potential disagreement that it is unlikely that an agreement can be reached in a day or two.

What Hornsby Will Ask.

Hornsby wants a substantial increase in salary and a guarantee that if he accepts again the managerial reins, there will be no interference. He is the second largest stockholder and it is understood that he will make certain requests with the purpose of protecting his interests.

Hornsby has never received any extra compensation for acting as manager during 1925 or 1926 and this undoubtedly will be taken into consideration in figuring the salary that will be paid Hornsby for 1927.

No official statement has ever been made as to the terms of Hornsby's player contract, which still has a year to run; but it is generally understood that his salary last year was $50,000. When he signs as manager for 1927, he probably will receive a salary approximating that of Babe Ruth, who is said to receive about $50,000 annually.

Friction between Hornsby and Branch Rickey, former business manager and now vice president and business manager, is responsible in part for the differences between manager and player.

Did or Will Rickey Ask?

Hornsby is said to have resented the fact that Rickey's contract is alleged to call for a bonus of about $25,000 as a result of the team's winning the pennant and world series.

Breadon Favors Re-election of Landis, With Powers as They Are

Breadon was asked if he cared to make any comment on the report from New York this morning that Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York Yankees, was in favor of curtailing the powers of Baseball Commissioner Landis.

"I am in favor of re-electing Landis without curtailing his powers at all," Breadon replied. "Baseball under his supervision has enjoyed its most prosperous years. The game has been kept clean and the clubs have prospered and I can see no reason for making any change."

Breadon said the question of re-electing Landis would come up at the joint major league meeting in Chicago, Dec. 16. It will be the last regularly scheduled joint meeting before the expiration of Landis' seven-year term, and while Landis could call a special joint meeting at any time to take up that or any other question, it was certain, Breadon said, that the election would be held Dec. 16. In the election of the commissioner the clubs of the two leagues vote separately, so that eight clubs in the National League and one from the American League could elect Landis even if the majority of the American League magnates were opposed to his re-election.

Buppert: World Curb Power.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Indications of a possible effort to curtail the power of Commissioner Landis are contained in a statement by Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York Yankees.

"I am in favor of continuing Landis in office," he says, "but I have in mind a plan that both leagues appoint committees of three men to revise the major-minor league agreement and the agreement with Landis. Such changes as they recommend can be reported back to all the club owners next spring, who can then adopt them and re-elect the commissioner."

This Col. Ruppert said, is the same view a majority of the American League owners hold, but this refusal to describe the changes he has in mind has led baseball men to believe that a concerted effort will be made by American League owners to curtail the power of the commissioner when the leagues hold their annual meeting in Chicago, Dec. 16.

National League magnates have indicated their desire to return Landis to office for seven years at the coming meeting although his term does not expire until Nov. 20, 1927. The heads of the older circuit seek no change in the conditions under which Landis now controls amateur baseball.

Breadon said he believed he would have the backing of the majority of American League owners in opposing the election of Landis in December. "I think next winter is the proper time to consider re-election," he explained. "While it is true that his term may expire in November, 1927, he has the right to call a joint meeting at any time he sees fit."

HIGH SCHOOL SEASON WILL CLOSE WITH TWO GAMES TODAY

The Public High School League season closes this afternoon with games at Roosevelt and Beaumont fields. Central tackles Roosevelt at the South Side gridiron, while Soldan-meeting Beaumont on Beaumont Field. The games were postponed on Oct. 26 and have no date on the championship, which was awarded by Cleveland's 4 to 0 defeat of St. Louis last Friday. Roosevelt and Soldan are expected to win games.

Special Pin Match.

A six game, total pins to count between the Schaefer Recreation and Martin Breitl women's bowling teams will be started in Wellington at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The first three games will be bowled at the Rogers Recreation next Thursday.

$90,000 Gate Is Expected At Flowers-Walker Battle

Former Welter King, Though He Will Be Outweighed, Is Favored to Take Middle Title From Georgia Deacon.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Mickey Walker, once the world's welter-weight titleholder, will attempt to annex the world's middleweight championship tomorrow night, meeting Tiger Flowers, the Georgia deacon, in a 10-round bout at a referee's decision.

The match, the first major contest decided indoors since the enactment of the Illinois boxing law, will be held at the Coliseum with indications that the gate receipts will exceed $50,000. The prices range from $3 to $15, but all of the $3 and $5 seats have been sold. The battle, according to Promoter Jim Mullin, will draw a capacity crowd of 10,000.

THE JOB RUTH WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR 294 RUNS DURING 1926 SEASON

School Board Members Favor Revoking Rule

At Least Five Will Support Wagner's Suggestion for Inter-City Games.

The movement directed toward the revocation of the "25-mile rule," long-standing restriction of the School Board on high school athletic activity, was given a further impetus today by endorsements of several board members of the statement addressed to the Post-Dispatch yesterday by Stephen M. Wagner, president of the board.

As end of the communication, Wagner pointed out that the lifting of the ban would exert a broadening influence on the pupils through widening the athletic horizon, and, further, that the construction of a new stadium made inter-city competitions more desirable than ever.

Ben Weidle, chairman of the Finance Committee, and Richard Murphy of the Instruction Committee, both expressed agreement with the proposal by Mr. Wagner. Arthur Blumeyer indicated vigorous support of the move, together with the other members of the board.

John C. Tobin, while he has no objection to local teams playing schools of other cities where such competition appears feasible, takes the position that any such action is an administrative function, to be left in the hands of the superintendent and his staff. However, once the ban is lifted it is likely that all games scheduled with out-of-town teams will be subject to the approval of such school officials.

Henry Heier, approached on the subject, stated that he had not given sufficient consideration to the proposal to form a definite opinion.

BABE' SCORED 139 AND DROVE IN 155 TALLIES

Sugger Thus Accounted for 36 Per Cent of Yankees' Markers—Williams Time-best Batter for Browns.

By Herman Weeke.

George Herman (Babe) Ruth, Sultan of Sweet Home Run King and what not, adds more honors to his already long list of laurels, shown by the miscellaneous markers given by the miscellaneous members of the American League, disclosed today. These figures were just how valuable a cog the slugger proved in the Yankees' winning campaign.

These records take into consideration the runs batted in by players.

Is this in phase of the game that an athlete's real worth is brought out?

And in this Babe Ruth stands head and shoulders over his rivals.

Official figures show that in 113 games, the Babe was responsible for 155 tallies. That gives him a record of driving in more than one run in each game played, while seven other players batted in more than 109 runs during the season.

None, not one of the lot, can approach him in average.

George Burns, the Cleveland sacker, who was voted as the "valuable man" to his club by the season by the committee of the sportswriters drove in 114 mates 151 battles to rank second to the Yankee slugger.

Responsible for 294 Runs.

But official records for the year bring out even more forcibly Ruth's great value to Jake Ruppert Co. In addition to driving in 155 runs, Ruth scored 139 marks. Which means that during the season he was directly responsible for 294 tallies, or just 10 fewer than in a game. On the season, the Yankees counted 847 times. Thus Ruth was in one way or the other involved in 36 per cent of these.

Which tends to show that with Ruth's heavy hitting, the Yankees were just an ordinary bunch of all. This was proven in the last series. When the Cardinals capped Ruth they stopped the struggle as a "toss-up."

Of the following men in the probable starting lineup, all but Burns, Thomas, and Weeke, will start their last game for Southern California Saturday.

Rockne's Squad Stops at Tucson To Stretch Legs

Notre Dame and California Coaches Have Selected Line-ups for Saturday's Game.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 2.—Doubt as to what will play on the University of Southern California football eleven that meets Notre Dame here Saturday has been dispelled for all but one position—that if right halfback. There is a chance that Morley Drury, halfback who has been out for some time with injured knees, may replace Lloyd Thomas.

Coach Howard Jones sent his starting lineup against the second team yesterday and expressed satisfaction with the combination selected to defend California's record of never having been defeated by an invading Eastern eleven.

Jones thus far has limited forecasts on the outcome of the contest to comment similar to Rockne's.

Junior 18.2 Champion Scores 432 Points in Second Block of Match.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—With 40 points remaining to be played in the 1200-point match for the national junior 18.2 balkline billiard championship, Kinney Matsuyama, the title holder, today held a lead of 128 points over the challenger, Arv Bos of Philadelphia. The score was 800 to 674.

"Slagle and Wilson are among the best backs in the country," Rockne said. "No team is really all-around this year, without the White. The White is the best team on the ground he had not played on a sufficient number of games, and of Harry Wilson, Army captain-elect, by argument that his varsity experience had been too extended, was declared by the Notre Dame coach to be a failure."

Each university placed two players on the first All-Eastern team—Brown, with Roy Randall at quarterback and Captain Broda at fullback. Fink is suffering from blood poisoning.

The first contest of the schedule Sunday will bring together the Ben Millers and Ratticans.

Teh players' share of the gates on the date decided upon will go to the injured athlete.

When the White Banners line up against the Wellstons in the second and feature game at Sports man's Park Sunday, Tom Chartrand will be at the center forward position in place of Burke.

Chartrand is a graduate of the Carondelet Municipal League. Gockel will again replace Captain Fink at halfback.

Washington Still
On Tigers' Baske'
And Mat Schedule

Dual Track Meet Also to Be Held, Unless Relations Are Broken Off.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 2.—
Threats of a break in athletic relations between the University of Missouri and Washington University cropped out at a meeting here last night of the Missouri Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics.

Called for the purpose of discussing athletic plans and policies for next year and the remainder of this year, on the eve of the Missouri Valley Conference meeting in Des Moines, Ia., tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, the Missouri Athletic Committee spent three hours discussing several vital questions, chief of which was that pertaining to continuation of relations with the St. Louis institution.

Members of the committee refused to make a statement on the action taken at the meeting.

Trouble between the two institutions grew out of their rough football game here on Nov. 13.

Chester L. Brewer, director of athletics at Missouri, left here following the meeting to attend the valley conference at Des Moines, where football schedules for next year, and other athletic business, will be transacted.

A date has been left open on the Tigers' schedule, and it is now natural whether the Tigers will schedule a game with Washington or not for a conference or non-conference game with some other school.

Might Affect Other Sports.

Missouri has already arranged three basketball games, a track meet and a wrestling match with Washington, and should a football game not be scheduled with that school for next year, that fact might have a bearing on whether the other sporting events are carried out, sportspersons here believe.

Possibility that Missouri in the near future might schedule non-conference games with several of the largest football teams of the country was suggested at a dinner by Earl F. Nelson, a St. Louis alumnus and member of the Athletic Committee, who declared that negotiations were being considered for games with Illinois, North Western, Chicago and Princeton, but that nothing definite had been arranged. The discussion of such games had occupied a considerable part of the committee meeting last night and that it was not a remote possibility that contracts for the contests would be drawn up in the next year or two.

Gophers Pick Joesting.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 2.—Herbert Joesting, Minnesota's line plunger fullback, was last night named captain of the 1927 football team. Joesting is a junior in the forestry college. Twenty-one players were awarded letters.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

HELEN B.—The 1854 quarter is worth from 25¢ to 30¢.

W. H. T.—The prohibition amendment was declared in effect Jan. 1, 1919. Thirty states had ratified it by Dec. 5, 1919.

X. Y. Z.—During a divine service at an army post the church flag was hoisted above the United States flag.

WILDE—"ice profounds" means out of the depths. The first two words of the Latin version of the 13th century.

MRS. Z. B.—See answer to B. B. in the Post-Dispatch of Nov. 11 for the roach powder formula. You may consult the paper at the Public Library.

WORSHIP.—The St. Louis Board of Education maintains special schools for deaf mutes. Inquire at the office of the board at St. Louis street about a school suitable for your small son.

W. H. W.—At the Travelling Library department of the Public Library for information about borrowing certificates, inquire at the St. Louis Library. Rare books owned by other libraries outside of St. Louis may be obtained through the department mentioned.

FALL CLEANER.—Wallpaper may be removed by thoroughly wetting the paper and either peeling it off or using a sharp knife as a scraper. Be careful not to gouge the plaster with the knife. If the paper dries before you get it off, soak it again. You should cover the floor and the wood work in the room with canvas and lay a sheet of newspaper that may be kept in place by thumb tacks, to prevent the slopping water from injuring varnish and paint.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be given.

MRS. A. McC.—With the termination of your illness, your general condition will be greatly improved and no doubt be restored to absolutely normal. The shock of your illness may have been the cause of your upset mental condition and as your husband probably is not qualified to do the operation, he should be extremely patient and forbearing of the disease returning, unless reinfected, as it will not return of its own accord, nor are you the least likely to be endangered by any sudden movements in the office of a first-class physician. You should forget all about your former health endeavor to get back your mental balance. Such operations frequently reduce the vitality so that with the general recovery, the original infection will necessitate the operation. # How a St. Louis Widow Built Up a Business And Fortune With Only a Needle and Thimble

It's a Romance of the Business World, Is the Story of Mrs. Ada Sullivan, Who Found a Way to Support Her Four Children After Her Husband Died.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

So much of a lost art has darning become in these days of rapid machine production that its revival on a large scale by one woman has made her a fortune, something more than modest one, and while filling that gap in many a rear garment, her money has filled the demand for her work.

Speaking of starting business on a shoe string, not even so much as the necessary thread was part of Mrs. Ada L. Sullivan's equipment for a business that has grown until now it serves customers in every state in the Union, to say nothing of the wholesale and retail trade in St. Louis. It is a business which occupies the entire floor of a building at the corner of Seventh and St. Charles streets, employs as many as 150 workers, and maintains and supports Mrs. Sullivan, her four sons and their families in something more than modest style.

A needle and thimble were Mrs. Sullivan's sole equipment, the thread being supplied by ravelings from the materials which the customer brings in and upon which the work is to be done. Naturally it is something more than ordinary darning that could have built up such a business. The A. L. Sullivan Textile Works has many new holes and damaged places in materials matching beyond the power of human eye to detect the difference, the weave, color, texture, pattern of any fabric woven of woolen, cotton, silk or whatever fiber. But it is all done by means of needle and thread in the hand.

Twelve years ago Mrs. Sullivan alighted from a train at Eads Bridge, not knowing when the conductor called out "St. Louis" that her ticket entitled her to ride on Union Station. It was the inspiration of a moment that caused her to disembark here. She was fleeing from the scene of the death of a beloved grandchild in Chicago. Her plans were nebulous, but she was hoping to obscure the memory of her sorrow in a trip to California. By the time St. Louis was reached, old habits of industry reclaimed her and an immediate impulse seems to have been to peep into telephone book and see where clothing and textile industries here might be located. She observed that most of them were on Washington Avenue. Washington Avenue was the first street sign that greeted her as she emerged from the station. Curiosity impelled her to see if there would be in St. Louis the demand for a sort of work which she had done elsewhere. She had some samples in her bag and before she had shown them at more than one clothing factory, before she had found a lodger in which they might be sent, her name was high with garments and materials which she was being implored to repair.

So loaded were her arms, indeed, that she just fell into the doorway of the first house exhibiting a furnished room sign. There she remained, finishing one lot of mending after another. In such rapid succession that she hadn't time to look for business quarters nor employ workers to help her. Finally, with her reputation established, she set for them of her four sons, just growing into manhood, to take over the business and while she set about the long laborious task of training women in her peculiar craft.

Mrs. Sullivan learned about weaving in the woolen mills of Rhode Island where she went to work when left a widow with four small children to rear, but her application of the knowledge gained was her own idea inspired by her observation of the loss suffered by manufacturers through goods damaged on the looms. Every time a flaw was detected by a purchaser a white thread marker was sewn into the selvage opposite the fault and every so many white threads called for a percentage discount in the sale price. In the pressure of business the manufacturers and the individual weavers usually preferred to stow the monetary loss rather than repair by hand the damage done by machinery. But this loss pained Mrs. Sullivan, brought up in habits of thrift, and gave her the idea that when sooner or later the flaw showed up in the finished cloth or in the suit bought by some unwary purchaser — if only the ultimate consumer could be reached, there might be a demand for her ex-per knowledge and skill as a tailor.

She applied first to a custom tailor in New York where she showed her samples and the foremen were incredulous. "Sit right down and let us see you rewrite the hole in this piece of cloth," they demanded, offering a piece of cloth of most complicated weave in which the flaw was large and fragrant.

Though perfectly confident of her ability to reproduce the pattern, so nervous was she at having an audience that she backed out saying she could return tomorrow. Much to the tailors' surprise she did return accompanied by two of her sons, one 17, one too young to leave at home. With the children hovering about her she hoped to establish a more familiar atmosphere and feel the inspiration that had spurred her on to all her tasks. Examining the fabric, pulling a thread to learn which stitches it picked up, analyzing its course through the warp and wool, she ravelled threads of each fiber employing from the edge of the fabric, threading her needle with them, reproduced the pattern and so spliced the ends of the threads that she remained not the least vestige of indication where the darn began and where it ended.

Two shops she started and sold in New York. Income-earner figures then attracted by the arrival of twin grandchildren in Chicago where she migrated there where again equipped only with needle and thimble, she established another business. When the bereft daughter needed occupation she presented the shop to her, migrating again with all her material capital, though ample assurance of independence, contained only in a thimble and the point of a needle.

It is primitive, so almost archaic in this age of machinery and because the art of weaving by hand is almost lost one to the average needlewoman that Mrs. Sullivan remains, so far as I have gone in her field. A great many years of study and practice have been required to perfect her art. So many that not many needlewomen are willing to follow her example.

It requires a year to teach a worker to reproduce by hand the most ordinary patterns in machine weaving and you almost have to be a designer or have a designer's knowledge to keep up with the new weaves. I pay while learning $12 a week and can assure wages as high as $30 a week with bonuses for special tasks, which is all that the ultimate payment for the work warrants. But I can get only a limited number of apprentices.

Girls nowadays would rather sit up and look pretty in an office than work with their hands."

But for the fact that the skilled needlewoman is almost extinct and that the special problems of reproducing machine woven fabrics require the utmost of patience and a good deal of ingenuity, the business would have attained much greater volume that it has. As it is, it has outgrown its quarters twice customers, wholesale and retail are scattered all over the country besides the lines of them that wait at the counters unwrapping garments in which moth holes, burns rents and unaccountable flaws are woefully but hopefully closed.

Long tables are piled high with orders or finished parcels. About 20 needleworkers sit beside windows round two sides of the building. Their work is attached to cushions on a level with the eyes. Each girl wears magnifying spectacles which are supplied her, and Mrs. Sullivan not only oversees each piece of work personally but continues to ply her own needle as rapidly and as steadily as ever she did.

Care of the Hair.

"WE'RE going to have a thorough shampoo this morning, madame," the operator smiled as Helen slid into the reclining chair. "And it's the easiest thing in the world for a woman to do herself."

"Everything is easy if one is familiar with the way," the client observed.

"True, madame, but you'll soon be going through all the motions of taking proper care of yourself automatically, now that you've found the understanding of her sex."

"What's the first thing this morning?"

"We'll take a bowl full of good, hot, soft water, and a cup of liquid soap made from melting any pure soap and we have all we need. Soap the head twice to insure perfect cleanliness, massaging all the while. Then rinse in three or four clear waters, the last as cold as you can stand without a shock."

"What about an egg shampoo?"

Drying the Hair.

"Some of our clients insist upon it. They think no better shampoo for the hair is known. They declare it not only cleanses the scalp and hair of dirt, but is strengthening in its effect. It should be rubbed in firmly, but gently, with a rotary motion, the massage aiding the shampoo in restoring elasticity and tone. In drying the hair, remember this: It is better to rub the hair dry with warm towels than to blow it dry with a blast of warm air."

"The reason is that massage is as beneficial to the scalp as to the skin of the body. In summer you have the open air and sunlight; that is an advantage. The frequent shampooing, madame, deprives the hair of its natural oils and fairly washes its life away."

"Unless the conditions are unusual, not even the most oily heads of hair should be washed oftener than once in two weeks. In the case of very dry hair, a longer interval—four to six weeks—is a safe statement. For your hair I should say ordinarily once every three weeks. But we'll shampoo it again in two weeks, because it's limp and oily."

"My scalp just naturally contains oil."

"Think of the trouble you are saved, madame. If it were dry such a bother to keep it from the hair itself. The important thing is if one must do it—to rub it into the scalp only. But we better talk about the things you do have to remember."

"I used oil on my hair there'd be a deluge," Helen smiled.

"Just so it would endanger the roots. What kind of brush does madame use?"

"Miss Whyte, madame, I rarely use any."

The Use of Brushes.

Madame must use a brush, but not a stiff one. Your hair is fine, and you must not be too ardent in your hair brushing, or it will pull out the hair. You should brush with a soft, caressing motion. A brush also spreads the natural scalp oil over the hair and acts as a cleaner to wipe off the surface dust and dirt."

"I've decided to let my hair grow. I've regretted having it bobbed."

"There's not much individuality with short hair. And hair, madame, is a matter of individuality more than any other part of a woman's toilet. From some, a bob takes off 10 years or so; on others it piles on the years and gives an unkempt appearance."

"You can't do up my hair," said Helen, looking up quickly, as the operator made an attempt to control the rebellious strands. "It's malignant!" I worked an hour with it last night; and look at it this morning."

"Miss Whyte, madame, I have made an appointment with an experienced hairdresser. Perhaps she is due now. I'll see."

"Will she study the shape of the head?"

Operator smiled. "She'll sacrifice fashion if necessary for the sake of becomingness."

"She must be good if she can do anything with my mop. If this artist is not due right away, couldn't we have time to maneuver? I feel compelled of my hands all the time. I don't do any rough work, but still they are coarse-looking—ever presentable."

A moment later the operator appeared with a small, fully-equipped tablet.

PROTEIN is one of the most important components of our diet. It is present in fish and shellfish. Vitamins are also plentiful in fish fets and oils, with 10% found in cod and herring roe to the same extent that it exists in eggs. Many other elements that the human body needs are present in fish which makes it imperative that we include it in our diet.

A pound of oysters will furnish 7 per cent of the energy a man needs daily, 25 per cent protein, 35 per cent calcium, 53 per cent phosphorus, and 136 per cent of the iron. Oysters also contain an abundant proportion of vitamins C, while there is a large proportion of iodine in the shellfish.

Oysters have not advanced in cost; there is no waste to them and those who live where they are available should use them freely. Clams also may be converted into most delectable dishes. Taking advantage of the available seafood helps along the family budget.

Oyster Loaf.
Trim the top crust from a baker's loaf, then hollow out the soft bread crumbs. Brush over with melted butter and put in the oven long enough to dry and toast slightly. Have ready as many oysters as needed, usually a solid pint or quart. Make a good cream sauce, drop in the oysters long enough to curl the beards, then fill the loaf. Use the top as a cover while serving.

Oysters Baked in the Shell.
Have the needed number of oysters opened and left in their deep shells. Add to them after dipping each oyster in melted butter a level teaspoonful of dry crumbs and a little grated cheese, dot with butter and bake in the oven a delicate brown.

Why a Husband's Head Is Sometimes Turned by Success

By LUCY LOWELL.

SUCCESS proved too much for her husband, she tells you. When he realized that he was wealthy and important, he began to think that she wasn't up to all his grandeur.

So he turned her over.

She's a sad figure—a very sad figure, indeed, as she stands there contemplating the brilliant figure the husband of her youth has become without her.

She droops all over, some way. Her lips droop and her shoulders droop and her spirits actually seem to turn right upon themselves and drag on the ground, they're so droopy.

She tells her story with tears and long, droopy sighs.

She had such a pleasant home. Her husband was pleasant, too, and even in those first days when he was hardly much, it was pleasant to set out on the long climb toward success. And it was more than ever pleasant to know that success was theirs, finally. But it proved too much for her husband!

And she can't see why. She can't see that she is what progress has left behind: the discard of the natural law of movement ahead!

She and her husband started out together with the same opportunities. Of course their duties were different, but those were only details of the mutual striving toward a goal.

They worked hard. But the husband spent some effort fitting himself for better posts.

He realized that he must change his ways as his work changed, as he went along; more important positions would mean contact with brawlier, better educated, more cultured men and women. So he set about securing more education and culture, developing his brain.

But the wife saw only a chance for resting her face and hands in approaching success. She had a cook and a butler and several maids and plenty of time on her hands.

She didn't bother with instructional reading, because she couldn't see that "such stuff" was any good. She had no idea what the last interesting book was or the star of the moment at the Metropolitan or what Tracy was doing about its government.

Of course, she had nothing to talk about with her husband as he climbed. She had nothing much to talk about with him either.

Her mind had gone to seed like a vegetable, while his budded and flowered.

It is any wonder he outgrew her and left her—sad as it all is?

The Diary of a New Father

By LUCY LOWELL.

MONDAY NIGHT.

I am a father—Joan is a mother! We are parents! It happened yesterday morning, and everything is fine.

It was cigars and candy for the office today. All the fellows were so interested and kept coming over to my desk so often that I had to go out and get another box of cigars.

The boss rather surprised me. I went in first thing this morning to tell him, and while I was explaining just how I had felt he picked up some papers and went right to work.

He suppose he thinks those five brats of his are the only children in the world.

I dashed out to the hospital at noon with fruit and magazines for Joan and a pink rattle for the baby. Joan starred at me for a minute and then said it was such a pretty rattle she would keep it until she and the baby came home; she didn't want it to get dirty around the hospital.

I went back this evening and she told me to bring home our son's nightgown and shirt and band and wash them and take them back to the hospital tomorrow. So I was brought them home, and I was called down by the janitor's wife for using the washing machine in the basement after 6 o'clock. I showed her the laundry and explained it had to be done. She sort of doubled up and ran out. Women are certainly snappy.

While I was at it I bought a little wooden tricycle whatyoucallit. It will kind of give us something to look forward to for the baby. If anyone can understand just what I mean. That is, we can sort of anticipate the time when we will be able to push himself around on it. And it will be nice to look at meanwhile.

Got letters from both our families today and took them to the hospital to show Joan this evening. She and the baby are getting along 100 per cent. I told her about the things I had bought and she asked how much I had paid for them, and of course she said it was too much.

Well, for a fact it was kind of steep. Her folks sent a check for $25 and mine one for another $25, but the buggy cost $27.50 and the bed $22.50, and there's the $50 shot, and besides I'm out $2.50 for the kiddie car.

On the other hand, we have the baby.

He can curl his toes as well as his hand around my finger now.

Smart? I should say so.

Anyway, I went out the front door, finally.

WILBUR TOLD
OIL WITNESS

NAVAL FACT

Admiral Robison, Elk Hill Lease Negotiator, Produces Order He Received in Fall-Doheny Trial.

SECRETARY WILL BE PUT ON STAN

Government Shows The Mines Bureau Has Sought to Keep Defendants "Out of Trouble."

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Something of a sensation occurred in the course of the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial this afternoon, when Capt. (former Admiral) John Robison, called as a witness for the defense, refused to answer certain questions and produced an order from Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, commanding him to disclose nothing which he had learned in a confidential capacity in the Navy.

Capt. Robison has been credited with the original idea of exchanging oil from the naval reserves for storage constructed at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii—an idea which eliminated finally in the leasing of the entire Elk Hills (Cal.) reserved to E. L. Doheny by Secretary of the Interior Alber B. Fall. The new oil trial charged with criminally conspiring to defraud the Government in that transaction.

Capt. Robison, who has since been retired, had answered several questions by saying: "I don't remember," when Frank Hogan, chief defense counsel, asked him if he had recently received any orders. He responded by producing Secretary Wilbur's order, which he had received yesterday. Hogan wanted it introduced in evidence. Objection was made and finally Justice Hoehling took the matter under advisement.

Wilbur is expected to testify to-morrow.

Capt. Robison has always defended the lease. While Hogan achieved some dramatic effect through the production of the order, it is a fact that the defense knew of it yesterday afternoon.

Robison Recalls Warning.

Robison said that Secretary of the Navy Denby wrote to Secretary of the Navy, designating Robison as the Navy's representative in the negotiations preceding the first Doheny contract and that Robison acted in this capacity throughout the discussions preliminary to the Pearl Harbor contract.

Just before Denby signed the letter to Fall suggesting oil tank at Pearl Harbor, Robison testified he said to the former Secretary of the Navy: "Look out, you can't fool with oil without getting dirty."

The relations between Robison and the Dohenys started when Edward Doheny Jr. was an officer on Robison's ship.

Robison told young Doheny his idea for a navy fuel oil depot at Pearl Harbor. Robison testified he said to the former Secretary of the Navy: "Look out, you can't fool with oil without getting dirty."

Robison said his young subordinate was enthusiastic about the plan, and assured him that if such a proposal ever came up, there would be a bid from the Doheny company.

It was strictly a matter of patriotism with both of them, he said. The elder Doheny has since testified, however, that he expected to make a profit of $100,000,000 of the lease which eventually resulted from the negotiations.

The bid on which Fall signed the Pearl Harbor contract to Doheny was approved by Secretary Denby, Robison said. He declared Doheny told him to recommend acceptance by Fall.

Robison Did Not See the Joke.

This contract contained the "joker" clause providing that any future leases in the reserve should be granted. Doheny should have "preferential right" to them.

There was a laugh in the courtroom, when Robison recalled telling Denby he didn't think the "preferential right" clause amounted much.

It was under this clause that Fall afterward secretly leased the entire reserve to Doheny.

Robison was still giving die-
